Town of Discovery Bay CSD AGENDA REPORT

Meeting Date

August 25, 2010

Prepared By: Rick Howard, General Manager Submitted By: Rick Howard, General Manager

Agenda Title

Electronic/Digital Recording of Town of Discovery Bay CSD Board Meetings

Recommended Action

Adopt Resolution 2010-11 providing that the Board authorize the use of electronic recording devices to record meetings for public record, minutes and clarification and to produce action minutes of CSD Board meetings.

Executive Summary

The Town of Discovery Bay Community Services District has, in the past, audio taped every CSD meeting for purposes of public record, generating Board meeting minutes, and for clarification should the need arise.

Recently, staff installed an electronic recording device for recoding Board meetings to continue to capture the audio recordings of each meeting. The new device allows for electronic recordings, versus magnetic tape recordings, in a variety of electronic formats. This allows for the quick and simple loading of the entire meeting recording to the internet.

As a result of this new capability, once each meeting has been concluded and the audio has been downloaded to the computer, staff will, as soon as reasonably possible, but in no event more than 72 hours after the conclusion of a meeting, post that audio recording to the Town of Discovery Bay's CSD website at www.todb.ca.gov for access by the public.

With the ability to post the audio files to the website, it will no longer be necessary to conduct summary minutes of each Board meeting. This process accounts for many monthly staff hours spent transcribing the tapes of the meetings. For example, a three hour meeting will result in approximately six hours of transcription time. From this point forward, with Board concurrence and adoption of Resolution 2010-11, all future Board meeting minutes will be Action minutes (see attached sample). The electronic recordings allows the Board the flexibility to generate more in depth minutes, summary minutes, or verbatim minutes if questions arise or clarification is necessary. If summary or verbatim minutes are requested, it will require a vote of the majority of members present at the time of request.

All other policies relative to Board meeting minutes, retention, and destruction will remain in place.

REQUEST FOR FUTURE AGENDA ITEMS: (07:37 PM)

A. Consideration of a Request from Council Member Richey regarding procedures for evaluating the City Manager and City Attorney.

Council Member Richey requested the item regarding procedures for evaluating the City Manager and City Attorney be de-prioritized in light of a new request he will bring forward under New Requests.

B. Consideration of a Request from Council Member Richey to determine if a consensus exists among the City Council for staff to return with a more detailed analysis regarding American Avenue and Balfour Road traffic impacts/improvements.

Council Member Richey said his goal was to improve traffic safety and flow, and take control of American Avenue/Balfour Road issues. He felt the City needed to explore moving the urban limit line (ULL) incrementally, explore financial and land acquisition issues, infrastructure costs, and he recommended prioritizing American Avenue issues.

Mayor Taylor said an American Avenue Task Force was formed in November 2007.

Vice Mayor Stonebarger said the Task Force had come up with goals and there had been reconstruction of the Balfour Road and American Avenue intersection. He felt the Task Force had been successful on fixing the issue with the tools available and had identified everything that could be done with available resources. A long-term solution was to move the ULL 30-acres at a time and he felt enough staff resources had been used at this time.

Council Member Richey felt the City needed to explore solutions.

Vice Mayor Stonebarger said one long term solution was to continue the loop of American Avenue to Balfour Road, which was out of the City's purview and he encouraged Contra Costa County to assist. The County had told the City to move the ULL in 30-acre increments.

Mayor Taylor requested a traffic study on Balfour Road from Deer Valley Road.

Council Member Richey said turning American Avenue in a loop may not be the solution or be within the City's purview and he felt that the City should re-examine the issue from the perspective of what the City can control.

Council Member Becnel suggested completing the American Avenue loop, which may not be feasible, and the emergency evacuation road going down to Balfour Road. If the City decided to annex the 30-acres to complete the loop, there were issues. It may be possible to annex 30-acres between American Avenue and Mountain View Drive and there may be a lot of traffic that was not there before. He felt those were the only three potential access routes in and out of the area given the constraints of the urban limit line.

Council Member Richey felt people wanted an examination of what could be done and it was it up to the City.

Council Member Brockman said he did not believe it was worth revisiting. The message of the voters was sent by Measure F not passing, and would still require the moving of an urban limit line. He did not want the issue brought up again and resources spent.

Mayor Taylor said Council would like to fix the American Avenue issue and it would require assistance from Contra Costa County, and the School District could not fix it on their own. He was concerned about placing a road in one of the neighborhoods due to high school traffic and he was willing to go to the Board of Supervisors. The City had a staff report resulting from the Task Force, that showed what the schools had done, such as staggered school times, and the City should provide the memo to anyone interested in the actions taken.

Council Member Richey said he wished to see the issue re-examined.

Council Member Brockman said all Council wanted American Avenue improved but revisiting it again was a waste. The road to be continued was part of the 30-acres included in flood control, which meant it was a larger area than 30 acres.

Assistant Director of Public Works/Assistant City Engineer, Paul Eldredge, said between the extension of American Avenue and Balfour Road, the right of way requirements would be 25 to 30 plus acres.

Council Member Brockman said the right of way acreage was one of the major contributors and part of the original engineering evaluation of why the road could not be continued.

Mayor Taylor asked about finances.

Vice Mayor Stonebarger said payments were split in thirds between the City, County, and School District and he agreed with Council Member Richey that the island was of concern. The Task Force had spent a lot of time with everyone that utilized the road and since Measure F did not pass, it took away a lot of long term options for the City, one of the goals being to annex the property. He felt nothing had changed in the last two years and staff resources to study American Avenue again should not be allocated, even though he would like to see a solution.

Council Member Becnel said Council was willing to look at other options should they come up. The American Avenue Task Force had consisted of both of the Elementary and High School Districts, Contra Costa County the City, and every option had been explored. Council was willing to explore new options, and if circumstances should change, it may be incumbent upon the City to reconvene the Task Force Committee. He felt given the constraints there were no other solutions at this time.

Mayor Taylor asked for a copy of an email regarding the schools and school issues that did not involve the City. He asked what the City and School District contributed to the Task Force.

Assistant Director of Public Works/Assistant City Engineer, Paul Eldredge, said the City's total cost for improvements was $640,000 and the total amount for the improvements was $954,000, which includes the intersection improvements referred to by Council Member Stonebarger.

Mayor Taylor said he felt traffic flow had been improved and said the City was open to any solutions. There had been enforcement in the area for safety and he would work with Contra Costa County Supervisors.

NEW REQUESTS:

Council Member Richey spoke regarding correspondence dated June 29, 2010, from the State of California Department of Facilities Management, pertaining to the opening of a parole operations office in the City, the location was not stated, but would be somewhere within a current state facility. He believed Council needed to discuss at the next Council meeting whether to welcome more parolees in the City.

Council Member Becnel asked if the notice met the requirements of the law.

Council Member Richey said the State and County allowed the placement of a parolee facility within 1/4 mile of a school, parks, and bus stops for school children.

Mayor Taylor asked if the State and County could place the facility anywhere they wanted and he asked for specifics related to the law for placing the facilities.

Council Member Richey said the correspondence stated that the State was providing notice to the City regarding considering leasing of a facility for parole, which would house 17 parole agents.

Mayor Taylor said portable signs regarding speed had been moved onto the Highway 4 Bypass and he asked if the City was still issuing tickets.

Police Chief, Mark Evenson, said there was additional enforcement on the Bypass, partially funded by the Highway 4 Bypass Authority, and staff was writing tickets and would have the amount of tickets written at the end of the next 30-day cycle.

ADJOURNMENT (08:13 PM)

Motion: Adjourn

Moved by Becnel, seconded by Taylor.

Vote: Motion carried 5-0.

Yes: Becnel; Brockman; Richey; Stonebarger; Taylor

Council Member Schlicht announced that all five Council Members were present for the Marty Russo Youth Athletic Park dedication ceremony last weekend. Mr. Russo was responsible for ensuring that the youth had strong athletic programs established in the early years of the community and because of his efforts, thousands of children today are enjoying Marty's fields and the numerous sports programs that he helped to launch. Many of his colleagues from the Mission Viejo Company attended the celebration and they too deserve our thanks for their part in shaping the community. Council Member Schlicht stated that their legacies are our community values; an active community where family matters. Mission Viejo is a city of 100,000 but it still has that small town appeal as a result of the founders' guidance many years ago and she expressed her thanks. Council Member Schlicht recounted her attendance at yesterday's Little League Day at Angel's Stadium. She said it was a joy for her to attend the event and she had a great view of the dugout. Council Member Schlicht requested that Mayor Kelley adjourn the meeting in memory of resident Lu Pace, the "Cowbell Lady" who was an icon of the community for her support of Viejo Little League.

Rosenberg's Rules of Order: Simple Parliamentary Procedures for the 21st Century

by Dave Rosenberg

he rules of procedure at meetings should be simple enough for most people to understand. Unfortunately, that hasn't always been the case. Virtually all clubs, associations, boards, councils and bodies follow a set of rules, Robert's Rules of Order, which are embodied in a small but complex book. Virtually no one I know has actually read this book cover to cover.

Worse yet, the book was written for another time and purpose. If you are running the British Parliament, Robert's Rules of Order is a dandy and quite useful handbook. On the other hand, if you're running a meeting of a five-member body with a few members of the public in attendance, a simplified version of the rules of parliamentary procedure is in order. Hence, the birth of "Rosenberg's Rules of Order."

This publication covers the rules of parliamentary procedure based on my 20 years of experience chairing meetings in state and local government. These rules have been simplified and slimmed down for 21st century meetings, yet they retain the basic tenets of order to which we are accustomed.

"Rosenberg's Rules of Order" are supported by the following four principles:

1. Rules should establish order. The first purpose of the rules of parliamentary procedure is to establish a framework for the orderly conduct of meetings.

- 2. Rules should be clear. Simple rules lead to wider understanding and participation. Complex rules create two classes: those who understand and participate and those who do not fully understand and do not fully participate.
- 3. Rules should be user-friendly. That is, the rules must be simple enough that citizens feel they have been able to participate in the process.
- 4. Rules should enforce the will of the majority while protecting the rights of the minority. The ultimate purpose of the rules of procedure is to encourage discussion and to facilitate decision-making by the body. In a democracy, the majority rules. The rules must enable the majority to express itself and fashion a result, while permitting the minority to also express itself (but not dominate) and fully participate in the process.

The Chairperson Should Take a Back Seat During Discussions

While all members of the governing body should know and understand the rules of parliamentary procedure, it is the chairperson (chair) who is charged with applying the rules of conduct. The chair should be well versed in those rules, because the chair, for all intents and purposes, makes the final ruling on the rules. In fact, all decisions by the chair are final unless overruled by the governing body itself.

Because the chair conducts the meeting, it is common courtesy for the chair to take a less active role than other members of the body in debates and discussions. This does not mean that the chair should not participate in the debate or discussion. On the contrary, as a member of the body, the chair has full rights to participate in debates, discussions and decision-making. The chair should, however, strive to be the last to speak at the discussion and debate stage, and should not make or second a motion unless he or she is convinced that no other member of the body will do so.

The Basic Format for an Agenda Item Discussion

Formal meetings normally have a written, published agenda; informal meetings may have only an oral or understood agenda. In either case, the meeting is governed by the agenda and the agenda constitutes the body's agreed-upon road map for the meeting. And each agenda item can be handled by the chair in the following basic format.

First, the chair should clearly announce the agenda item number and should clearly state what the subject is. The chair should then announce the format that will be followed.

Second, following that agenda format, the chair should invite the appropriate people to report on the item, including any recommendation they might have. The appropriate person may be the chair, a member of the governing body,

There are exceptions to the general rule of free and open debate on motions. The exceptions all apply when there is a desire to move on. a staff person, or a committee chair charged with providing information about the agenda item.

Third, the chair should ask members of the body if they have any technical questions for clarification. At this point, members of the governing body may ask clarifying questions to the people who reported on the item, and they should be given time to respond.

Fourth, the chair should invite public comments or, if appropriate at a formal meeting, open the meeting to public input. If numerous members of the public indicate a desire to speak to the subject, the chair may limit the time of each public speaker. At the conclusion of the public comments, the chair should announce that public input has concluded (or that the public hearing, as the case may be, is closed).

Fifth, the chair should invite a motion from the governing body members. The chair should announce the name of the member who makes the motion.

Sixth, the chair should determine if any member of the body wishes to second the motion. The chair should announce the name of the member who seconds the motion. It is normally good practice for a motion to require a second before proceeding with it, to ensure that it is not just one member of the body who is interested in a particular approach. However, a second is not an absolute requirement, and the chair can proceed with consideration and a vote on the motion even when there is no second. This is a matter left to the discretion of the chair.

Seventh, if the motion is made and seconded, the chair should make sure everyone understands the motion. This is done in one of three ways:

- 1. The chair can ask the maker of the motion to repeat it;
- 2. The chair can repeat the motion; or
- The chair can ask the secretary or the clerk of the body to repeat the motion.

Eighth, the chair should now invite discussion of the motion by the members of the governing body. If there is no desired discussion or the discussion has ended, the chair should announce that the body will vote on the motion. If there has been no discussion or a very brief discussion, the vote should proceed immediately, and there is no need to repeat the motion. If there has been substantial discussion, it is normally best to make sure everyone understands the motion by repeating it.

Motions are made in a simple two-step process. First, the chair recognizes the member. Second, the member makes a motion by preceding the member's desired approach with the words: "I move ..." A typical motion might be: "I move that we give 10 days' notice in the future for all our meetings."

The chair usually initiates the motion by:

 Inviting the members to make a motion: "A motion at this time would be in order."

Debate on policy is healthy; debate on personalities is not. The chair has the right to cut off discussion that is too personal, too loud or too crude.

Ninth, the chair takes a vote. Simply asking for the "ayes" and then the "nays" is normally sufficient. If members of the body do not vote, then they "abstain." Unless the rules of the body provide otherwise or unless a super-majority is required (as delineated later in these rules), a simple majority determines whether the motion passes or is defeated.

Tenth, the chair should announce the result of the vote and should announce what action (if any) the body has taken. In announcing the result, the chair should indicate the names of the members, if any, who voted in the minority on the motion. This announcement might take the following form: "The motion passes by a vote of 3-2, with Smith and Jones dissenting. We have passed the motion requiring 10 days' notice for all future meetings of this governing body."

Motions in General

Motions are the vehicles for decisionmaking. It is usually best to have a motion before the governing body prior to discussing an agenda item, to help everyone focus on the motion before them.

- Suggesting a motion to the members: "A motion would be in order that we give 10-days' notice in the future for all our meetings."
- 3. Making the motion.

As noted, the chair has every right as a member of the body to make a motion, but normally should do so only if he or she wishes a motion to be made but no other member seems willing to do so.

The Three Basic Motions

Three motions are the most common:

- The basic motion. The basic motion is the one that puts forward a decision for consideration. A basic motion might be: "I move that we create a five-member committee to plan and put on our annual fundraiser."
- 2. The motion to amend. If a member wants to change a basic motion that is under discussion, he or she would move to amend it. A motion to amend might be: "I move that we amend the motion to have a 10-member committee." A motion to amend takes the basic motion that is before the body and seeks to change it in some way.

3. The substitute motion. If a member wants to completely do away with the basic motion under discussion and put a new motion before the governing body, he or she would "move a substitute motion." A substitute motion might be: "I move a substitute motion that we cancel the annual fundraiser this year."

Motions to amend and substitute motions are often confused. But they are quite different, and so is their effect, if passed.

A motion to amend seeks to retain the basic motion on the floor, but to modify it in some way.

A substitute motion seeks to throw out the basic motion on the floor and substitute a new and different motion for it.

The decision as to whether a motion is really a motion to amend or a substitute motion is left to the chair. So that if a member makes what that member calls a motion to amend, but the chair determines it is really a substitute motion, the chair's designation governs.

When Multiple Motions Are Before The Governing Body

Up to three motions may be on the floor simultaneously. The chair may reject a fourth motion until the three that are on the floor have been resolved.

When two or three motions are on the floor (after motions and seconds) at the same time, the first vote should be on the last motion made. So, for example, assume the first motion is a basic "motion to have a five-member committee to plan and put on our annual fundraiser." During the discussion of this motion, a member might make a second motion to "amend the main motion to have a 10-member committee, not a five-member committee, to plan and put on our annual fundraiser." And perhaps, during that discussion, a member makes yet a third motion as a "substitute motion that we not have an annual fundraiser this year." The proper procedure would be as follows.

First, the chair would deal with the third (the last) motion on the floor, the substitute motion. After discussion and debate, a vote would be taken first on the third motion. If the substitute motion passes, it would be a substitute for the basic motion and would eliminate it. The first motion would be moot, as would the second motion (which sought to amend the first motion), and the action on the agenda item would be complete. No vote would be taken on the first or second motions. On the other hand, if the substitute motion (the third motion) failed, the chair would proceed to consideration of the second (now the last) motion on the floor, the motion to amend.

If the substitute motion failed, the chair would then deal with the second (now the last) motion on the floor, the motion to amend. The discussion and debate would focus strictly on the amendment (should the committee be five or 10 members). If the motion to amend passed, the chair would now move to consider the main motion (the first motion) as amended. If the motion to amend failed, the chair would now move to consider the main motion (the first motion) in its original format, not amended.

To Debate or Not to Debate

The basic rule of motions is that they are subject to discussion and debate. Accordingly, basic motions, motions to amend, and substitute motions are all eligible, each in their turn, for full discussion before and by the body. The debate can continue as long as members of the body wish to discuss an item, subject to the decision of the chair that it is time to move on and take action.

There are exceptions to the general rule of free and open debate on motions. The exceptions all apply when there is a desire of the body to move on. The following motions are not debatable (that is, when the following motions are made and seconded, the chair must immediately call for a vote of the body without debate on the motion):

A motion to adjourn. This motion, if passed, requires the body to immediately adjourn to its next regularly scheduled meeting. This motion requires a simple majority vote.

A motion to recess. This motion, if passed, requires the body to immediately take a recess. Normally, the chair determines the length of the recess, which may range from a few minutes to an hour. It requires a simple majority vote.

The challenge for anyone chairing a public meeting is to accommodate public input in a timely and time-sensitive way, while maintaining steady progress through the agenda items.

Third, the chair would now deal with the first motion that was placed on the floor. The original motion would either be in its original format (five-member committee) or, if amended, would be in its amended format (10-member committee). And the question on the floor for discussion and decision would be whether a committee should plan and put on the annual fundraiser. A motion to fix the time to adjourn. This motion, if passed, requires the body to adjourn the meeting at the specific time set in the motion. For example, the motion might be: "I move we adjourn this meeting at midnight." It requires a simple majority vote.

A motion to table. This motion, if passed, requires discussion of the agenda item to be halted and the agenda item to be placed on "hold." The motion may contain a specific time in which the item can come back to the body: "I move we table this item until our regular meeting in October." Or the motion may contain no specific time for the return of the item, in which case a motion to take the item off the table and bring it back to the body will have to be taken at a future meeting. A motion to table an item (or to bring it back to the body) requires a simple majority vote.

A motion to limit debate. The most common form of this motion is to say: "I move the previous question" or "I move the question" or "I call for the question." When a member of the body makes such a motion, the member is really saying: "I've had enough debate. Let's get on with the vote." When such a motion is made, the chair should ask for a second to the motion, stop debate, and vote on the motion to limit debate. The motion to limit debate requires a two-thirds vote of the body. Note that a motion to limit debate could include a time limit. For example: "I move we limit debate on this agenda item to 15 minutes." Even in this format, the the motion fails. If one member is absent and the vote is 3-3, the motion still fails.

All motions require a simple majority, but there are a few exceptions. The exceptions occur when the body is taking an action that effectively cuts off the ability of a minority of the body to take an action or discuss an item. These extraordinary motions require a two-thirds majority (a super-majority) to pass:

Motion to limit debate. Whether a member says, "I move the previous question," "I move the question," "I call for the question" or "I move to limit debate," it all amounts to an attempt to cut off the ability of the minority to discuss an item, and it requires a two-thirds vote to pass.

Motion to close nominations. When choosing officers of the body, such as the chair, nominations are in order either from a nominating committee or from the floor of the body. A motion to close nominations effectively cuts off the right of the minority to nominate officers, and it requires a two-thirds vote to pass.

If you are running the British Parliament, Robert's Rules of Order is a dandy and quite useful handbook.

motion to limit debate requires a twothirds vote of the body. A similar motion is a motion to object to consideration of an item. This motion is not debatable, and if passed, precludes the body from even considering an item on the agenda. It also requires a two-thirds vote.

Majority and Super-Majority Votes

In a democracy, decisions are made with a simple majority vote. A tie vote means the motion fails. So in a seven-member body, a vote of 4-3 passes the motion. A vote of 3-3 with one abstention means

Motion to object to the consideration of a question. Normally, such a motion is unnecessary, because the objectionable item can be tabled or defeated straight up. However, when members of a body do not even want an item on the agenda to be considered, then such a motion is in order. It is not debatable, and it requires a two-thirds vote to pass.

Motion to suspend the rules. This motion is debatable, but requires a two-thirds vote to pass. If the body has its own rules of order, conduct or procedure, this motion allows the body to suspend the rules for a particular purpose. For example, the body (a private club) might have a rule prohibiting the attendance at meetings by non-club members. A motion to suspend the rules would be in order to allow a non-club member to attend a meeting of the club on a particular date or on a particular agenda item.

The Motion to Reconsider

There is a special and unique motion that requires a bit of explanation all by itself: the motion to reconsider. A tenet of parliamentary procedure is finality. After vigorous discussion, debate and a vote, there must be some closure to the issue. And so, after a vote is taken, the matter is deemed closed, subject only to reopening if a proper motion to reconsider is made.

A motion to reconsider requires a majority vote to pass, but there are two special rules that apply only to the motion to reconsider.

First is the matter of timing. A motion to reconsider must be made at the meeting where the item was first voted upon or at the very next meeting of the body. A motion to reconsider made at a later time is untimely. (The body, however, can always vote to suspend the rules and, by a two-thirds majority, allow a motion to reconsider to be made at another time.)

Second, a motion to reconsider may be made only by certain members of the body. Accordingly, a motion to reconsider may be made only by a member who voted in the majority on the original motion. If such a member has a change of heart, he or she may make the motion to reconsider (any other member of the body may second the motion). If a member who voted in the minority seeks to make the motion to reconsider, it must be ruled out of order. The purpose of this rule is finality. If a member of the minority could make a motion to reconsider, then the item could be brought back to the body again and again, which would defeat the purpose of finality.

If the motion to reconsider passes, then the original matter is back before the body, and a new original motion is in order. The matter may be discussed and debated as if it were on the floor for the first time.

Courtesy and Decorum

The rules of order are meant to create an atmosphere where the members of the body and the members of the public can attend to business efficiently, fairly and with full participation. And at the same time, it is up to the chair and the members of the body to maintain common courtesy and decorum. Unless the setting is very informal, it is always best for only one person at a time to have the floor, and it is always best for every

It is usually best to have a motion before the governing body prior to discussing an agenda item, to help everyone focus.

lege relate to anything that would interfere with the normal comfort of the meeting. For example, the room may be too hot or too cold, or a blowing fan might interfere with a person's ability to hear.

Order. The proper interruption would be: "Point of order." Again, the chair would ask the interrupter to "state your point." Appropriate points of order Withdraw a motion. During debate and discussion of a motion, the maker of the motion on the floor, at any time, may interrupt a speaker to withdraw his or her motion from the floor. The motion is immediately deemed withdrawn, although the chair may ask the person who seconded the motion if he or she wishes to make the motion, and any other member may make the motion if properly recognized.

Motions to amend and substitute motions are often confused. But they are quite different, and so is their effect, if passed.

speaker to be first recognized by the chair before proceeding to speak.

The chair should always ensure that debate and discussion of an agenda item focus on the item and the policy in question, not on the personalities of the members of the body. Debate on policy is healthy; debate on personalities is not. The chair has the right to cut off discussion that is too personal, too loud or too crude.

Debate and discussion should be focused, but free and open. In the interest of time, the chair may, however, limit the time allotted to speakers, including members of the body. Can a member of the body interrupt the speaker? The general rule is no. There are, however, exceptions. A speaker may be interrupted for the following reasons:

Privilege. The proper interruption would be: "Point of privilege." The chair would then ask the interrupter to "state your point." Appropriate points of privirelate to anything that would not be considered appropriate conduct of the meeting; for example, if the chair moved on to a vote on a motion that permits debate without allowing that discussion or debate.

Appeal. If the chair makes a ruling that a member of the body disagrees with, that member may appeal the ruling of the chair. If the motion is seconded and after debate, if it passes by a simple majority vote, then the ruling of the chair is deemed reversed.

Call for orders of the day. This is simply another way of saying, "Let's return to the agenda." If a member believes that the body has drifted from the agreed-upon agenda, such a call may be made. It does not require a vote, and when the chair discovers that the agenda has not been followed, the chair simply reminds the body to return to the agenda item properly before them. If the chair fails to do so, the chair's determination may be appealed.

Special Notes About Public Input

The rules outlined here help make meetings very public-friendly. But in addition, and particularly for the chair, it is wise to remember three special rules that apply to each agenda item:

Rule One: Tell the public what the body will be doing.

Rule Two: Keep the public informed while the body is doing it.

Rule Three: When the body has acted, tell the public what the body did.

Public input is essential to a healthy democracy, and community participation in public meetings is an important element of that input. The challenge for anyone chairing a public meeting is to accommodate public input in a timely and time-sensitive way, while maintaining steady progress through the agenda items. The rules presented here for conducting a meeting are offered as tools for effective leadership and as a means of developing sound public policy.
